OH HEY, ROSÉ

Sarah Jessica Parker is at it again. After a successful launch of an inaugural New Zealand sauvignon blanc vintage that she co-created with Rob Cameron and Tim Lightbourne, SJP is now adding a premium rosé to the Invivo X, SJP wine collection (invivoxsjp.com). This second release from Invivo & Co comes from the south of France and was perfected by Parker and her associates over an afternoon of blending and tasting in New York City last year. A gorgeous shade of blush pink in the glass, the aroma profile invokes clear rose petals and bright summer berry characters wrapped in a minerality that makes this wine exceptionally fresh. SJP Rosé is full-bodied with great complexity and elegance, delicious on its own or with a range of cuisine. We know what we'll be drinking all summer.
